SYDNEY DAVIS

TEDx Speaker | Tech Founder

Sydney Davis is the Founder of NixCode, an Artificial Intelligent (AI) no-code app development software company that's removing barriers for non-technical founders. She is dedicated to supporting non-technical entrepreneurs, helping them launch their first successful mobile app & software companies. Since launching in April 2020, her platform NixCode supports over 56,000 users and received a $12.5M valuation while owning 99% equity in her company.

Like many entrepreneurs, she has bootstrapped her entrepreneurship from the beginning including winning numerous equity-free pitch competitions totaling over $250,000. To date, Sydney has been recognized as one of 30 Influential Women Advancing AI, a Forbes Next 1000 Entrepreneur Honoree, and a recipient of the Google Black Founders Fund.

With over a decade of entrepreneurship and tech experience, Sydney encourages diversity of thought among community leaders and equity among underrepresented founders. Achieving profitable business success without the financial burden, debt or hardship is her personal mission to grow more long-term minority tech companies by sharing her personal journey.

EXPERTISE

Building Tech with No Code

As an expert in the no-code space, beyond teaching founders with fresh ideas on how to use her platform NixCode, Sydney teaches product development using a suite of no-code tools. This helps founders determine the best approach and best practices for building their idea using the best development approach.

Pitching For Funding

There is an art to pitching, whether it's for funding or investment, Sydney has mastered getting to unicorn status through sharing her company's story. Sydney prepares founders with the resources and tools required to be prepared to WIN opportunities at any stage of business from her experience of raising $250,000 equity free.

Being a Tech Founder

Being a solo founder is hard, Sydney has been an entrepreneur for 10 years with other successful ventures and a failure or two. The tenacity and discipline required to keep going and learn from pitfalls are what have led to her breakthrough with NixCode. Sydney's story is an inspiring one to uplift and motivate the inner hustler we all have.
